"This gala birthday party will feature a full day of free musical entertainment, food of all types, dancing, contests and demonstrations, and fun, fun, fun for all," said Ted Eilerman, president of St. Elizabeth Medical Center and chairman of the city's Centennial Grand Finale event.

The day will begin at 8 a.m. with a 5-kilometer run and 2-kilometer walk sponsored by the Illinois Rehab Network. More than 500 participants have pre-registered for these events.

Food booths will open at 10:30 a.m. and will feature pizza, hamburgers, barbecue chicken, turkey legs, bratwurst, pork and beef, corn on the cob, nachos, Italian sausage, chicken

School programs boost attendance

By Bob Slate
Staff writer

Granite City school officials are cracking down on chronically truant students — and their parents.

And a new "in-school" suspension program has administrators forecasting a decline in the number of serious disciplinary problems.

"The bottom line is, if they're not in school they're not going to learn," said Ron Stern, director of elementary education for the district.

With the cooperation of police, truant students and their parents are being charged criminally — a "truancy" charge against the kid and "permitting truancy" against the parent.

"We're trying to send a message," Stern said. "The goal is not to get the legal system after the kids or their parents — that's a consequence of their action. The goal is to get kids into school."

School officials were concerned to learn of a relatively high rate of chronic truancy that appeared to be increasing, Stern said.

So administrators put together a list of students who had established a pat

Porn operation discovered here

Videotapes, computers are seized

By Bob Slate

Granite City police have discovered an alleged child pornography operation in their own back yard.

Police confiscated hundreds of videotapes, dozens of photo albums and several computers — all containing pornographic photographs — while executing a search warrant in the 2400 block of Iowa Street at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Some of the images taken from the residence depicted young girls engaged in sex. Assistant Police Chief Kip Pomeroy said. Many others depicted apparently consenting adults in various stages of nudity.

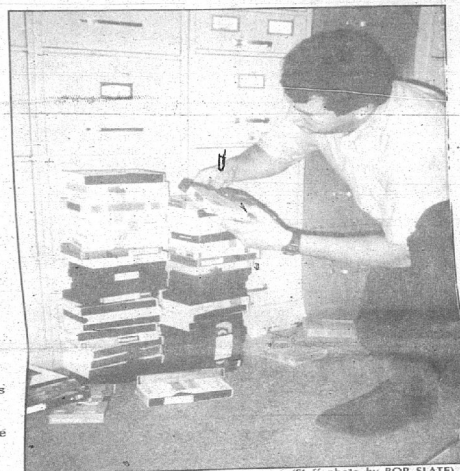

Police Chief Dave Ruebhausen said Wednesday afternoon that at least four local girls — all juveniles — had been tentatively identified from the pictures.

This investigation has the potential to open up and include a number of jurisdictions," Ruebhausen said. "We're reviewing a multitude of evidence that was seized and investigating all avenues. But I am certain there will be charges filed."

However, charges will not be filed until the investigation is further along, police said.

Several of the photographs contained an advertisement for a toll-free telephone number to call to obtain copies or enlargements, Pomeroy said, leading police to believe the illegal material may have been marketed on a large scale.

Ruebhausen and Pomeroy said inspecting all of the material is a time-consuming process, that detectives are

News in review

News in review provides a summary of some of the past week's stories. This column is designed for out-of-town readers who do not receive the Sunday and Wednesday Press-Record/Journals.

Yard waste plan advances

A hearing officer has recommended local siting approval for a permanent yard waste drop-off facility in Granite City be granted.

Former Madison County Circuit Judge George Elcock, who served as a hearing officer in the matter, formally recommended approval of the facility, to be located off 25th Street between Center Street and the railroad tracks, in a letter to the City Council dated Sept. 26.

The city currently operates a temporary leaf and grass drop-off facility at the location. City Inspector Vince Scrum said illegal dumping of yard waste has virtually ceased in the city since the temporary operation began.

The council has until Nov. 18 to either approve or disapprove of the request for permanent siting.

Milton will replace Warfield

It has been said that history runs in cycles.

The scheduled appointment of Walter Milton Sr. as 6th Ward alderman Tuesday night would appear to support that theory.

Mayor Ron Selph said Monday that he would appoint Milton, a marketing representative for Pepsi Cola and former alderman and park board member, to fill the unexpected term of Mac Warfield, who resigned the council after being appointed to the county board.

It is not the first time Milton has followed in Warfield's footsteps.

Milton was appointed 6th Ward alderman to replace Warfield in 1982, when Warfield took the street superintendent post in the city.

McGinnis hunt stepped up

Authorities in Bond County have stepped up a manhunt for murder suspect Kelly L. McGinnis after he reportedly resurfaced at his attorney's office Thursday and was possibly spotted again Friday.

Meanwhile, authorities in Madison County continued beefed-up security at the courthouse, where Associate Judge Ann Callis-Rongey, who awarded custody of the McGinnis children to the mother, maintains an office.

Officials had feared McGinnis may go after Callis-Rongey after he expressed frustration in the justice system and in the ruling in his custody case.

18 warrants issued

The Madison County State's Attorney's office issued eight felony warrants last week for alleged drug activity in Granite City.

The warrants were issued Sept. 28.

Kirby W. Whitte, 32, of Alton; Kevin Lee Young, 25, of Granite City; James Patrick Mitchell, 46, of the 1600 block of Primrose in Granite City; Kristine D. Vaughn, 22, of the 2100 block of Lee Avenue in Granite City; Randall E. Middleton, 37, of Parktown West in Granite City; Frederick H. Ray, 25, of the 2800 block of Warren Avenue in Granite City, were all charged with unlawful possession of a controlled substance.

Jeffrey S. Reynolds, 35, of the 2500 block of East 27th Street in Granite City, and Lu Ann Johnston, 38, of Cahokia, were each charged with solicitation.

Town case to be heard today

A St. Clair County judge will decide whether voters in Granite City will be allowed to dictate the future of their township government.

Richard Aguirre has been assigned the case of David Partney vs. Granite City Township and Judy Whitaker. It is scheduled for hearing today in Edwardsville.

Partney filed petitions in August to have a referendum placed on the Nov. 5 ballot in Granite City asking voters if township government should continue there. But the petitions were thrown out by the township electoral board, which ruled Partney had collected too few valid signatures.

Man charged in shooting

A St. Louis man who was released from prison in May is back in jail after allegedly shooting a Pontoon Beach man over a washing machine Monday morning.

Joseph A. Watson, 27, was charged last week with aggravated battery with a firearm.

Bond was set at $250,000.

He is alleged to have shot a man in the Oakmont Apartments.

Art workshops offered

The Madison County Arts Council Kids & Art Workshops for 1996-97 will be held at the Granite City Public Library District Branch Library at 2445 Johnson Road.

The Kids & Art Workshops are monthly activities designed to teach children from 6 to 8 years old the basic values of art. The one-hour art workshops will be held after school from 4 p.m. to 5 p.m. every month from October through May at the branch facility on the 2nd Thursday of each month. Guest artists will introduce students to unique topics, artistic techniques, and new art materials.

Class size for the workshops is limited to allow students more personal attention. Registration for these free programs for Granite City Public Library District cardholders will be held at the branch library one week in advance of each session.

The topics will include: "Watercolor Painting," "Native American Art," "Paper Hut Village Display," "Chine Colle/Relief Printmaking," and "Experiments in Clay."

All materials will be provided free of charge. Additional information can be obtained by calling the branch library at 452-9224.

New drug court earns praise

Madison County's six-month-old drug court is getting high marks from officials and participants.

Since March, first-time drug addict felons have had the option to participate in the Madison County Assessment and Treatment Alternative Court as an alternative to a stronger sentence. Successful participation also removes the felony from participants' records.

Chief Criminal Judge Edward Ferguson, speaking to the county's Finance Committee, said most participants are making progress. "Our testing indicates less drug usage over time," he said.

Ferguson said 84 of 192 eligible defendants are participating in the year-long program. Only seven drug users have dropped out and 13 have been released for repeated drug use. Nine participants have found jobs and five have returned to work.

However, tests show that 30 percent of the participants are using drugs after 91 days in the program, down from about 60 percent in the first 45 days, he said.

"These people have serious drug addiction problems and it's taking longer than we thought," Ferguson said.

One participant who found work is a 27-year-old waitress from Alton named Gina, arrested recently for crack cocaine possession.

Gina, who spoke on condition that her full name be withheld, said she is grateful to be a part of the drug court.

"I'm kind of sad about (the arrest), but I'm glad in a way because I now am off drugs. I would advise everyone to ask about drug court if they need it."

—Gary
Program participant

"It has helped me stay sober and get some direction back in my life," she said. "I refused the program at first, but then I decided it was what I needed. Besides, I save $1,200 in attorney fees and get the felony off my record."

She said she used crack cocaine on three-day binges each month for about a year. She started using after hanging around with other drug addicts, whom she doesn't see anymore.

"Gina said the people running the drug court program are good, but appear to be guilty of trying to do too much."

Another participant, Gary, is a 34-year-old married man from Alton, who is still looking for work after completing a county job training program.

Gary said he used crack cocaine daily for 10 years and spent "thousands and thousands" of dollars on his habit. He was arrested for felony theft two months ago.

"I'm kind of sad about (the arrest), but I'm glad in a way because I now am off drugs. I would advise everyone to ask about drug court if they need it," he said.

Both Gina and Gary said they had tried to quit drugs before their arrests, but it was too easy for them to start again. After two months for Gary and one month for Gina, both said they had stopped cold.

Participants attend classes and counseling sessions five days a week from 9 a.m. to 12 noon. Weekly testing and twice monthly visits with Ferguson keep most of them honest.

Class attendance requirements are cut back to just three times a week for some participants after they've proved themselves.

The Finance Committee approved $600,000 for the program in March. Officials estimate that the program will cost $3,000 per participant, with some of the expense defrayed by Medicare and insurance reimbursements. The county contracts with Plaza Health Care in Alton to run most of the program.

Finance Committee members said they were pleased with the preliminary results and will consider funding the program in the forthcoming budget.

term of missing two or more days of school each week in the past.

Those kids — and their parents — were sent a notice at the beginning of the school year that they could face legal ramifications if the students were truant. Some of the families also received a follow-up, in-person visit from district personnel.

The district has also quadrupled the size of its force of truancy officers this year to four from just one in the past. Police are also watching for kids during the day and asking why they are not in school.

"The police have been very cooperative," Stern said.

"It's working," Stern said. "You can't believe the attitude that is changing in parents."

Said School Superintendent Steve Balen, "It's really doing the job."

While first month attendance figures will not be compiled until early next week, Stern said preliminary reports are encouraging.

"We have one school that has never attained 94 percent attendance. It was usually around 82 or 83 percent," Stern said. "But that school is now over 95 percent."

Balen said the district has adopted a policy of not suspending students.

"By keeping more students in trouble and you sent them home for two or three days, it was almost like you were rewarding them — that's what they wanted," Balen said.

"And all they would be at home and watch television."

This year, all middle school and high school students who misbehave in ways that in the past warranted suspension are being referred to "in-school suspension" — a classroom set up at the Lincoln Place Community Center and staffed by teachers from Coordinated Youth and Human Services' alternative school.

Balen said the in-school suspension program appears to be reducing the number of serious disciplinary incidents.

By keeping more students in classes, both programs — the truancy program and the in-school suspension program — have also resulted in an increase in state financial aid to the district.

The district receives state funds based in part on attendance.

7-year sentence for Dowdy

A Granite City man will spend the next seven years in federal prison for his part in a drug distribution conspiracy.

Larry Dowdy was sentenced to 87 months in prison after being found guilty of conspiracy to distribute methamphetamine. He was one of 14 defendants indicted in January 1995 in connection with one of the largest methamphetamine distribution conspiracies in the county, according to U.S. Attorney Charles Grace.

The conspiracy was operated from June 1992 until the indictment.

Also convicted and sentenced in connection with the conspiracy are Don Steven Skaggs of Granite City (360 months), Sherie Lee Skaggs (235 months), Michael Lee Marshall (324 months), Terry Evan Marshall (235 months), Randy Lynn McEntire (262 months), Rodney Lee Masters (74 months), Todd Wesley Stitt (275 months), Bryan Scott Skaggs (292 months), Timothy Paul Ceballos (186 months), Toby Lee Colburn (186 months), James Michael Russ Jr. (121 months), Mark Vincino Duarte (180 months) and Douglas Eugene Moore (87 months).

Three others are awaiting sentencing: Bradley Edward Leger, Mark Ralph Wilkins Sr. and Isaac Everett Marshall.

50 years of public service

Labor honors Belcoff

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

Madison Mayor John Belcoff was honored for almost 50 years of public service by local labor leaders at a meeting Thursday evening.

At the monthly meeting of the Greater Madison County Federation of Labor AFL-CIO, Belcoff was given a plaque and thanked for his years of service.

The award was to be presented at the annual Labor Day parade, but Belcoff was unable to attend because of illness.

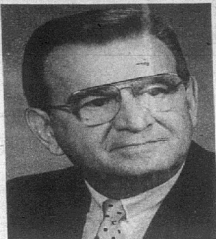

Belcoff said he was especially proud of the award. "I've received many awards, but this is a people's award," he said. "I'm so proud of it and will cherish it for the rest of my life."

Belcoff — who also served as the county's Democratic party chairman from 1990 to 1994 — was first elected to the Madison School Board in 1951. He served on that board for 18 years, 16 as board president.

He resigned in 1967 after being appointed Madison City Clerk, a position he held until he was elected mayor in 1985.

His term ends next spring, and Belcoff has said he will not seek reelection. "I've got eight months left," he said. "There's a lot to be accomplished."

However, he said he would

leave the city in a far better financial condition than when he was first elected mayor.

"When I came in as mayor, I was counting those pennies and nickels and dimes and quarters to keep that city alive," he said. "When I leave the city of Madison will be sitting pretty financially."

Union leaders also heard from several politicians running for office, including incumbent Madison County Auditor Fred Bathon and Circuit Clerk Matt Melucci.

Melucci is unopposed, while Bathon is facing Republican challenger John Finnegan. Illinois House of Representatives candidate

Glenn Bradford, who is in a tight race with Republican opponent Mario Garcia for the 112th seat, also spoke and made an appeal for help in what is expected to be a very tight race.

That seat is being vacated by Democrat Jay Hoffman, who is running against Republican John Shimkus for Rep. Richard Durbin's congressional seat.

Bradford said the 112th race is so tight that it could be decided by a few percentage points — or perhaps a single vote.

"You know it's all on the line," he said. "This is not a race we're going to win easily, the numbers are just not there."

Bradford predicted that Collinsville Township would be the crucial area.

He also said his biggest concern was Democratic voters who would support Shimkus.

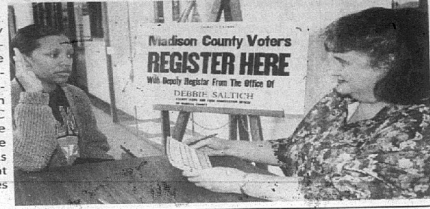

Bradford said he would get all of those who voted for Hoffman, but was afraid those who switched to vote for Shimkus might not switch back for him.

To counter that, he said, supporters would be going door-to-door in Collinsville Township for the next three weekends.

"I need some labor bodies," he said. "I need them badly."

Letter from pastor urges McGinnis to turn himself in

GREENVILLE — Police are hoping publication of a letter from the pastor of Kelly McGinnis will encourage the murder suspect to give himself up.

"Your separation from Katie, Phillip, (his children) the church and choir, friends and family must make you cry out to God in your seclusion," the letter said. "I've got eight months left," he said. "There's a lot to be accomplished."

However, he said he would

Pastor Greg Courtright wrote in an open letter to McGinnis, who has been in hiding since his wife's lawyer was murdered Aug. 12.

Greenville Police Chief John K. King said Courtright gave them a response to one of five letters that McGinnis has mailed to his pastor.

"Law enforcement officials are disseminating the letter ... to read it and respond appropriately. These officials concur with Rev. Courtright's concerns and hope that a safe surrender of McGinnis will be the result of the dissemination," King said.

Authorities have been looking for McGinnis since he was charged with first-degree murder in the death of Greenville City Attorney Thomas Meyer. McGinnis has been on the run since the Aug. 12 shooting.

Meanwhile, authorities in Litchfield said they received an unconfirmed report McGinnis driving his green minivan near Litchfield High School on North Second Street.

In his letter, Courtright, pastor of First United Methodist Church in Greenville, where McGinnis was a member, appealed to the suspect's love of family to persuade him to give up.

Edwardsville bans leaf burning

Health concerns will keep Edwardsville free of all leaf burning, beginning this fall.

After years of controversy and discussion, the City Council voted 7-1 Tuesday for an immediate ban.

"I focused on the health issue," Alderwoman Susan Donnelly said, adding that burning adversely affects children with asthma and all people with respiratory, heart and allergy problems.

Burning five pounds of leaves puts one pound of pollutants into the air, which can affect 40 percent to 50 percent of the population, she said.

The city outlawed leaf burning for 10 months in 1992 but residents have since been allowed to burn from May 1-16 and Oct. 15 to Nov. 30 between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

Residents also have the option of using special bags sold for 25 cents at the City Clerk's Office for curbside pickup.

Alderman Rich Madison, who has strongly supported the ban for several years, said he was not insensitive to the difficulties of bagging and will urge other methods of disposal.

He said the ban was appropriate because the health issue was important.

Alderman Rosemary Bratten, the lone dissenter, said she was concerned with the health argument, but 75 of 100 callers in her ward wanted to burn their leaves.

"I felt like I had to vote the way I did, although it was unpopular," she said. "I had so many calls from senior citizens who were afraid they could not afford to buy the bags for curbside pickup. It probably would have been better to allow leaf burning one more time and settle the issue in May."

THE LAW AND YOU

By RICK REED
Attorney At Law

A husband and wife came to this office in 1987, and each had a will prepared. The couple had no children, and each spouse left the entirety of his or her estate to the other spouse upon the death of the first. When the second one died, each will provided that various relatives and charitable organizations were to receive the residue of the estate.

The husband died in 1991, and the entirety passed to his wife pursuant to the will. She then began rethinking how she wanted her estate to pass upon her death, and she decided to make changes in her will.

The original will had left property to two relatives that had died, and in addition, she also wished to remove one of the charitable organizations mentioned in her original will and substitute another group as beneficiary.

The woman never called for an appointment. She died approximately six months later and never made the changes she desired in the will. One of the changes involved more than $150,000 she wished to leave to personal friends who were not mentioned in the original wills.

Upon her death, the friends called this office and indicated that it was her desire that they have money from her estate. They wondered if her wishes could be complied with even though the will had never been changed. The people were advised that the terms of the original will must be complied with, and her subsequent wishes could not be fulfilled because her will was never changed.

The lesson to be learned from this incident is that if a person desires changes in his or her original will, a new document must be prepared following the necessary formalities. Even a piece of paper left with the original will does not accomplish a change. Any changes in an original will must be brought about through a new will or codicil which is properly witnessed, attested to, and signed with the necessary formalities. A person should never rely upon word of mouth or an informal note to bring about changes.

In the case noted above, the woman's wishes were never fulfilled due to the fact that she never got around to making a new will. In this case, the original will had to be viewed as the desires of the deceased even though her informal comments to friends and relatives indicated other wise.

Change as necessity

While residents of East Madison resoundingly told Madison city officials last week that they don't want to be annexed — and, for their part, city residents said they really didn't want East Madison residents to become part of their city either — the reality is that eventually the neighborhood is very likely to be absorbed by the city. That could come as quickly as next Tuesday, when aldermen will get a chance to vote on the proposed annexation.

At a public hearing last week, resident after resident of East Madison said they opposed the annexation. Most opponents mentioned sewers (they don't want them), or police (it's nice when they come, but they don't respond that quickly) or the possibility of higher taxes (nobody wants higher taxes).

And most said they just want things to stay the same and they want to be left alone.

Many of those are residents who have lived in the area for decades and see no reason to change. But change comes anyway.

While everybody wishes for a return to the good old days, those days are gone and are not coming back.

Nobody wants to have to pay higher taxes or have services they don't want, but East Madison — and for that matter Cloverleaf and Eagle Park — are not going to stay unincorporated forever.

Even if it does happen on Oct. 8, Madison will almost undoubtedly eventually absorb East Madison.

The fact is that state law allows the city to annex the land because it has surrounded it, and having small areas of unincorporated land inside a city is a burden and makes providing services difficult and confusing.

And Madison does have an interest in these areas. If they were allowed to remain as they are, those unsidewalked, unsewered areas would eventually become the blighted area that some aldermen think they are now.

Much of that is because of the sewer situation. In the 1980s, residents voted down an opportunity to have sewers — at a price, of course.

Since that time they have been pumping sludge into the ground, and city officials say the East Madison area like many other areas in similar situations — is almost saturated.

If that is allowed to continue, eventually the area becomes unhealthy and unsanitary, and both the city and East Madison residents will suffer because of it.

Then the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency or some other governmental agency is going to come in and force residents to hook up to a sanitary sewer system. If they are ordered to do so by the state or a court, it could be much more expensive and disruptive than if the city is involved.

An annexation would also provide better police protection.

After all, why should the city be sending officers to an area that does not pay for them to be there?

Although there are mutual aid agreements in place, if nobody is being injured at the time it is not the city's responsibility to provide that protection.

Some questions remain unanswered however.

Exactly how much would it cost for a sanitary sewer system?

How much time would residents have to bring their homes into compliance with city building and zoning laws?

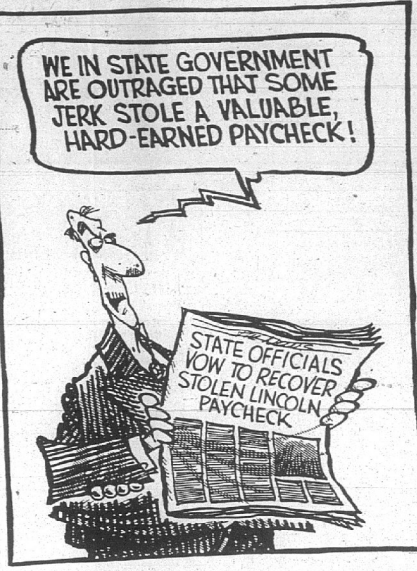

How would the city's political wards change?

What are the city's plans for the Cloverleaf and Eagle Park areas?

What is going to happen to the city's tax rate?

Some of these questions may be answered quickly, and others may take some time.

But residents in East Madison should get ready for some changes.

Letters to the editor

Davis fights jobs' bills

TO THE EDITOR: While Steve Davis supporters spout the usual rhetoric about Democrats being "for the working man," they continue to miss, or choose to ignore, the facts on Steve Davis' record. Mr. Davis has several opportunities to vote for legislation that would provide jobs for thousands of local workers. However, projects like a bill to build new prisons, millions in road funding, a bill to remodel areas of the Alton Mental Health Center, a bill to build a new building at SIUE, and a tax cut to free up money for businesses to hire new employees were all voted against by Steve Davis. Thousands of construction jobs from capital projects and others were created through the tax cut but all voted against by Mr. Davis. His opponent, however, has a record of promoting economic growth and development and has publicly supported expansion of National Steel, the bonding bill Davis voted against, and the tax cut that freed up an estimated $128 million for businesses to hire new employees. It is clear that Jim Mihalich is the candidate who supports keeping our jobs and creating more jobs. It is a shame that many who would benefit from having Mr. Mihalich as their state representative are too politically blind to admit it. JOHN RYAN III Granite City

Family bills show concern

TO THE EDITOR: Proverbs 22:6 advises: "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old, he will not depart from it." Fortunately for the working men and women in the 11th District, Steve Davis was raised by parents who fought for the interests of working families. Steve learned well. As a state representative, he has continued to fight for workers. Because of his outstanding voting record on labor issues, he has been endorsed by the AFL-CIO with a 95 percent rating, one of the top ratings awarded to any representative. Davis promised to look out for the interests of working families, and he has. Steve recently proposed the "Working Families' Bill of Rights," a six-point plan to directly help working families. Now it's time for us to support Steve Davis with our votes in November.

PAC money helps Durbin

TO THE EDITOR: U.S. Senatorial candidate Al Salvi's opponent, Richard Durbin, received $250,000 in 1995 from special interest Political Action Committees. One wonders why Durbin accepts huge amounts of PAC money when retiring Democratic Congressman Andrew Jacobs did not accept PAC money. In the Aug. 1991 issue of American Legion magazine, Jacobs wrote, "One can be sure a PAC contribution does not influence a legislator only if the legislator does not accept the PAC contribution." Jacobs concludes that, "Who pays the fiddler calls the tune" and that, "when PACs finance the campaign fiddler, you can bet there are going to be strings attached!" reveal all the sources of his PAC money and the total collected in 1995. Former Democratic Illinois treasurer Pat Quinn criticized Durbin for voting for government subsidies for wealthy companies that gave thousands of dollars to Durbin's campaign. As an example, the Gallo Winery reaped more than $100 million in tax breaks, and surprise, surprise: Durbin's campaign received $21,250 from Gallo! Quinn also thought it was improper for Durbin's daughter to have received financial aid from a scholarship fund established by a lobbyist for Grumman Corporation.

Not knowing Durbin's voting record on issues that might benefit Grumman, it's difficult to know if Quinn was completely accurate when he described Durbin as the "cash register Democrat who sells our workers and taxpayers for campaign contributions." It seems to me that it would have been more appropriate for this scholarship to have gone to a more deserving student. Instead, a family member of a millionaire career politician with a fat taxpayer-subsidized pension received it! If Durbin were a conservative, the media would be checking him out closer than a protogelologist; but being a liberal, Durbin needs only to smile, point towards his halo, and everything is all right!

Carol's comments Christmas in September?

A recent "Peanuts" strip found Lucy quietly watching television when her brother, Linus, blanket in hand, approaches her and says, "I wonder if it's my imagination...you don't seem as crabby as you used to..." and Lucy turns on him, yelling furiously, "I'm not slipping!"

There's a streak of Lucy in my own persona and it surfaced just before Labor Day when a friend told me he had been seeing three Christmas trees lately open in St. Louis County. C'mon! First, before Thanksgiving, then before Halloween, and now, before summer ends. A pox upon 'em!

At about the same time, I read that a nationwide drug store chain was already displaying Santa Claus figures in its greeting card sections, so I suppose it's inevitable that within weeks we'll be seeing those electric razor commercials fifteen times a night.

But then, I ran across three stories in the Business section of the P.R. that gave me pause, dealing as they did with a part of the national economy.

One dealt optimistically with the coming holiday season in terms of the toy manufacturing and retail businesses, both of which took a beating, financially, during the 1995 Christmas season.

This year, they predict, should be a bonanza in comparison, with a crop of new toys, many based on blockbuster movies geared for small fry.

They're expecting big bucks, rivaling the billions of dollars spent on Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles, from items like Slinky Dogs and Mr. Potato Heads Action toys, tied to such movies as "Independence Day," "Toy Story," and "101 Dalmatians."

Then, in another story, I learned of what's new with Toys R Us, the big, big toy retailer, which is now remaking itself, a process that includes not just revamping the original stores but developing a superstore aimed at infants called Babies R Us.

They're looking toward F.A.O. Schwarz ambience and will upgrade merchandise to include more expensive items, such as Gunc plush toys. Services in the new stores will include party rooms, a children's hair salon (Yikes! a portrait studio and fast food eateries.

But the real eye-opener, to me, was a story concerning Mattel toys and, who else?, Barbie.

From the git-go, let's be honest: Barbie holds no charm for me. I totally lack empathy with little girls who play with dolls, any doll, not just Barbie.

After failure, following failure, to awaken a maternal instinct in my small breast, my mother finally surrendered completely on dolls as gifts and began giving me stuff I'd actually use, stuff I wanted: skates and bikes.

But I never got the horse I asked for, year after year. However, even I respect figures and Barbie has been a winner for Mattel. More than $1.4-billion Barbie products are sold annually, accounting for about 39-percent of the company's sales which, last year totaled $3.6 billion.

"No mention was made of how Ken (Barbie's boyfriend) is faring and it's possible she's dumped him. This year, though there'll be not only the Olympic Barbie and the Holiday Barbie, but also the Totally Hair-Barbie and the Bicycle Barbie. Barbie will have her own computer and credit card. There's a Doctor Barbie (with baby patient whose heartbeat can be heard on Barbie's stethoscope) and a Teacher Barbie, complete with math book and ethnically-mixed stu-

They're expecting big bucks, rivaling the billions of dollars spent on Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles, from items like Slinky Dogs and Mr. Potato Heads Action toys.

And you'll be able to buy a software program which designs and prints out her wardrobes.

Who could ask for more? Certainly not Mattel. And it's hard to knock an industry which provides as many jobs as does the maker of Barbie and whose stock has risen in less than ten years from a trifling $1.87 a share to $27.

Still, like Lucy denying her loss of crabbiness, I'm not ready to acquiesce to preparing for Christmas in September. It verges on the indecent in my book, but I might as well join Tom Lehrer's advice to deck us all in boughs of holly, fill the cut and don't say "when" brother, here we go again.

Candidates promise more school funds

Mihalich, Davis criticize one another

Candidates for the 11th District seat in the state House of Representatives both promised Tuesday to seek increased funding for local school districts.

Challenger Jim Mihalich, R-East Alton, announced an endorsement by the Alliance Political Action Committee at a press conference Tuesday morning on the steps of the Madison County courthouse in Edwardsville.

Mihalich criticized his opponent, incumbent Steve Davis, D-Bethalto, for "engaging in partisan political fights" that allegedly prompted the Republican-controlled Legislature to shut down proposed emergency funding for Wood River-Hartford Elementary and East Alton-Wood River High School districts.

The districts lost hundreds of thousands of dollars in tax revenues earlier this year when area refineries won reductions in assessed valuation. Mihalich said that, if elected, he would propose additional state funding for the districts.

Mihalich said Davis failed those schools last year by engaging in "a partisan political fight, which led to the bill's demise."

Davis blamed Republicans for pulling the school funding bill.

"The Republicans pulled that bill, and they cost our schools money, not me," Davis said. Davis pointed to endorsements by the Illinois Education Association and the Illinois Federation of Teachers as proof of his commitment to education.

Both Mihalich and Davis promised to sponsor legislation to help ease the blow of property reassessments on local schools.

Bathon, Finnegan trade charges

Candidates for Madison County auditor traded barbs last week over the position's salary.

Challenger John Finnegan, an Alton Republican, said he would return a large portion of a 33 percent raise incumbent Fred Bathon pushed for earlier this year.

Finnegan would give back to the county about $20,000 from his paychecks over three years starting in 1998 if he defeats Bathon, an Edwardsville Democrat, in the November general election.

"I believe it (the salary increase) is fiscally irresponsible and completely at odds with the stand elected officials must make if we are ever going to reduce the tax burden for our citizens," Finnegan said.

Finnegan, 53, said he would accept part of the raise in 1997 but would return the next three annual increases.

Bathon said he is glad Finnegan acknowledges at least part of the raise, which the County Board approved in May.

"I'm glad to hear my opponent thinks the increase for the first year is 'appropriate,'" Bathon said.

The position currently pays $32,416 a year. The auditor will make $57,916 in 1997, and by 2000 the salary will be $69,609. Bathon, 41, pushed for the raises along with three other Democratic county officeholders. They said their positions were underpaid compared to other county employees.

Finnegan said he believes in fair salaries, but "these are coming at a time when people are complaining about taxes and about the loss of jobs in the area."

Transit district seeking funding for 30 new buses

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

Resolutions to seek funding for 10 new 30-passenger buses were among items approved last week at the monthly board meeting of the Madison County Transit District.

Five of the buses would be financed with Federal Transportation Administration Congestions Management Air Quality funds. The other five would be financed through the Illinois Department of Transportation's Discretionary Capital Grant Funds.

Transit District Manager Jerry Kane said in each case the grant would cover 80 percent of the cost — approximately $960,000.

Last year the transit district replaced most of its older 30-passenger buses. The board also approved a resolution seeking CMAQ funding for a commuter information system.

The computer system would cost about $315,000. The grant would pay for approximately $252,000.

Kane said the system would link with other transit system computers, including that of the Bi-State Development Authority.

He said customers calling in could then tell an operator where they want to go, and the computer would provide detailed instructions — including bus routes and times.

Kane said the program is similar to systems the district had looked at previously.

Rain cancels event

Heritage America reset for this weekend

By Nicole Vaughn
Staff writer

Not everyone got the message when Cahokia Mounds officials decided last week to postpone the site's "Heritage America," scheduled for last weekend.

Paul Nixon, assistant site superintendent at the Mounds, said about 7,000 visitors were at the site over the weekend.

"I guess a lot of people did not get the information," Nixon said.

The event has been rescheduled for this weekend.

The visitors last weekend got to see at least a few added attractions because not all of the participants and vendors were able to cancel their plans to be in town, Nixon said.

"We had some activities and some vendors here, but basically we have just rescheduled everything for a week later than planned," Nixon said.

Last Thursday, after several days of rain left the site more than soggy, organizers decided to postpone the event for a week.

The Native American festival, which is the Mounds' largest event, brings Indians from all over the country together to perform traditional dance, music, crafts, games and cooking.

Most of the dancing will be held in the dance circle from 6:30 to 10 p.m. Friday and Saturday and from 1 to 5 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. Traders will be set up nearby.

In the Grand Plaza, between the Interpretive Center and the dance circle, demonstrations and hands-on activities will take place from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

The event is free and no admission fee to the Interpretive Center will be charged during the festival. Shuttle buses will transport visitors from the special event parking areas along Business 40 to the center and the dance circle.

Leader of Great River Road preservation dies at age 75

Gladys Lewis-Allen headed Alton area group

ALTON — Gladys Lewis-Allen spent her life preserving the natural beauty of the bluff-lined, scenic Great River Road.

"Gladys was a leader in the Alton community, an inspiration to all of us who are working to preserve the area along the River Road," said Annie Hoagland, chairwoman of the Alton Lake Heritage Parkway Commission.

The 75-year-old Lewis-Allen died at 5 a.m. Saturday of complications from cancer at her home in Chevy Chase, Md., where she moved from Alton in February.

"My mother was a friend to everyone. She never met a stranger," said her daughter, Gladys Filz of Albuquerque, N.M.

Lewis-Allen headed the Great River Lands Preservation

Association, a group that worked to protect land, wildlife and rare songbirds along the River Road from Alton to Grafton.

She had a dramatic impact across the area, performing volunteer work for Alton schools, Girl Scouts of America, Alton YWCA and Oasis Women's Center in Alton.

"Gladys touched the lives of people everywhere," Godfrey Mayor Lars Hoffman said. "She had a positive impact on the progress of the River Bend area. She'll be missed."

The public can pay tribute to Lewis-Allen at a memorial service at 10:30 a.m. Saturday at the First Presbyterian Church at Fourth and Alby, streets in Alton.

"Gladys was a loving, caring person who reached out to help others in need," said her friend Mary Ellen Johnson of East Alton, who served on the YWCA board with her.

Lewis-Allen had a warm spot in her heart for abused mothers and children, said Charlotte Stetson, former president of the Oasis Women's Center.

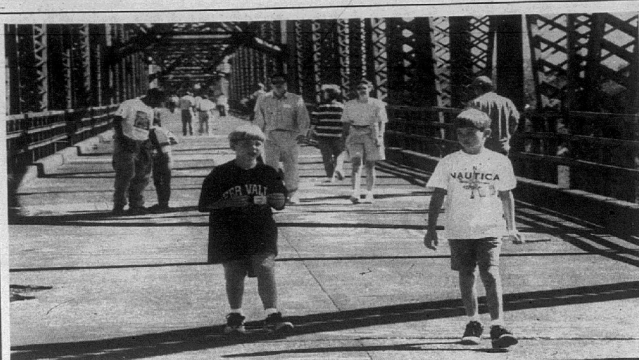

She was a member of the board of directors and a leader in fund-raising efforts for Oasis, Stetson said.

Lewis-Allen was the widow of Robert Lewis II, an executive board member of Owens-Illinois Glass Co. in Alton. Although her family was wealthy, she was a humble person who often spent her days tutoring underprivileged children in the Alton schools.

"Her commitment to the needs of women and children had no social or economic boundaries," Stetson said.

"Her focus was always helping those in need."

Glen Carbon OKs raises for officials

Payday will be a little kinder to Glen Carbon's mayor and clerk starting next year.

Beginning with the spring election in April, the village will pay $32,500 to the full-time clerk up from $30,000—and $9,000 to the part-time mayor, up from $8,400.

The Village Board last week approved the raises, including $1,000 annual raises for the clerk to bring the salary to $35,500 by May 1, 2000. The clerk also serves as collector.

The mayor's pay goes up $300 a year after the first year to $9,000 by May 1, 2000.

Trustees' pay was not changed from $7,200 a year. Finance Committee Chairman Ben Maliszewski said the new salaries are in line with those paid by other communities of similar populations. The village has 9,300 residents.

Based on statewide research, where clerks earn an average

$34,000 in towns of 9,000, the committee easily recommended the increases, which were then approved by the full board.

By law, salary changes for elected officials must be completed by October before the spring election and remain in effect for the four-year term, beginning May 1.

"The total compensation package, including salary and benefits, is comparable and we feel well within our budget," Maliszewski said.

The mayors' salaries vary statewide but the committee's first goal was to compensate the office holder for time and expenses, he said.

Glen Carbon's mayor must attend more meetings than trustees and be available for other duties, he said.

Young Rams' fan wins media guide contest

By Mark Hodapp
Staff writer

Jeff Cranford is a big football fan.

"Even before the Rams moved to St. Louis last year, I always liked them," he said.

Cranford, a senior at O'Fallon Township High School, probably one of the team's biggest fans today.

He recently won the Rams' 1996 Media Guide contest. More than 1,200 students entered the contest.

His illustration now appears on the Rams' 1996 media guide.

In addition, Cranford will receive a $5,000 educational scholarship from the Rams as the grand prize winner.

Cranford plans to attend McKendree College next fall and major in art.

Cranford participated in the coin toss at the Rams' home opener against Cincinnati a few weeks ago.

"I found out about that when I got to the game," he said.

Cranford thought he was going to have to watch the game from the sidelines.

"I watched the game from Rams owner Georgia Frontiere's suite," he said.

"That was the first time I sat at a hot dog with a silver fork."

include something in his illustration that symbolized the Rams and St. Louis.

Cranford said the illustration took him a while to develop before he was satisfied.

"I removed the players because it didn't look right," he said.

Cranford said art projects helps him to relax.

"It also helps me think about things," he said.

O'Fallon Township High School art teacher Keith Freeman said Cranford has great art potential.

"He has won many ribbons and awards on the local, state and national level," Freeman said.

"He is very enthusiastic about his work and approaches his assignments in a professional manner."

depicted a young girl — about 10 years of age — wearing no pants or underwear.

Police on Wednesday were trying to determine if the image was downloaded from a disk owned by the resident of the home where the alleged contraband was seized or if it was obtained on the Internet.

Computer disks, about a dozen 35mm cameras, several lenses, light meters and flash units were confiscated, along with nine long guns, more than a dozen handguns and ammunition, and a suitcase full of sex toys and props, Pomeroy said.

Many of the props appear in the photographs, leading police to believe the pictures were taken locally.

The resident of the house was reportedly out of town Tuesday and Wednesday, Pomeroy said.

Police on Wednesday were pouring over the photographs, searching through computer files, watching videotapes, and inventorying the confiscated pornography and interviewing persons whose images appear in the photos.

Police initiated the investigation after a 15-year-old girl reportedly displayed some pictures at school.

John Wesley, the founder of the Methodist Family of Churches, said, "If all you can, save all you can, and give all you can." Nameoki's motto is: "Christ can make a difference for Christ. We welcome the public to this seminar and learning how to effectively use this tool called money."

EHS standout among area's all-time best

If you're looking for a winning trifecta in high school sports, a sure winner is Edwardsville High School's Jim Dougherty.

In this age of specialization, Dougherty is the exception. The three-sport Tigers' star is a standout in football, basketball and baseball.

He is considered one of the better all-around athletes ever to play high school sports in this area and is being mentioned in the same breath as Mike Jeffries of Alton, Rusty Lisch of Belleville West, Rogie Redmon of Collinsville, Kris Jenner of Mascoutah and Bob Hoskins of Edwardsville. "I'm sure you have your own list."

Joe Meyer, longtime sports editor of the Edwardsville Intelligencer, says of Dougherty: "You can't say he stands out in one sport over the others. He's just outstanding in all three. He's been able to excel at a high level in all three sports without sacrificing excellence in any of them."

Dougherty has been playing varsity sports since his freshman year. What he may have lacked in size and other physical traits, he always made up with his knowledge and feel for whatever sport he was playing.

As Edwardsville's quarterback, he has the Tigers on target to again qualify for the playoffs. Edwardsville already has avenged its playoff loss to East St. Louis from a year ago by routing the Flyers 41-0 this season.

The Tigers (5-0) defeated Belleville West last week and lead the Southwestern Conference with a 3-0 mark. Edwardsville is averaging 52.6 points per game this year, having outscored its opponents 263-21.

In basketball, Dougherty again will be expected to lead the Tigers after almost getting them to the state finals last year, losing only to Belleville East in the sectional final. Two seasons ago, it was Dougherty's long shot from the corner which beat Centralia in the supersectional at Carbondale and sent the Tigers to the state finals in Champaign.

In baseball, he again will be counted on to lead the Tigers' pitching staff, which is loaded again.

Dougherty's opportunities to play sports after high school will be many in football, Iowa, Northern Illinois, Illinois State and Kansas State are all interested. The basketball inquiries have come from Bradley, Illinois State, Evansville and SIU-Carbondale.

In baseball, Dougherty has been contacted by Bradley, Iowa, Illinois State, Creighton and Indiana State, plus the professional ranks.

"It will be his ultimate decision," says Tim Dougherty, Jim's father, who is Edwardsville's head football coach and athletic director. "I will be giving him input when he needs it, of course, but mainly speaking as a father rather than a coach."

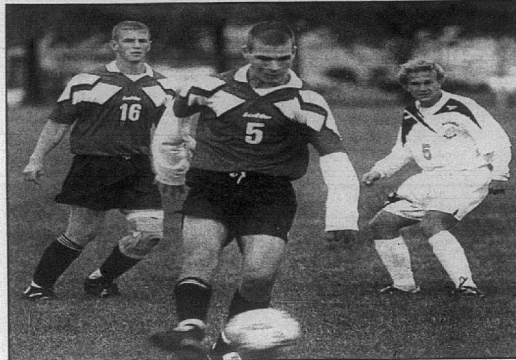

If Jim opts for football, he will take his father with him. "That would be something I'd have to consider," says Tim, who has built the Tigers into a powerhouse. "It's not really in my plans. It's not something I'd have to do, because I feel I have a good situation at Edwardsville."

Meyer, who has been a keen observer of area high school sports since 1964, says he is impressed with the relationship between the Doughertys.

"I have seen other father-son relationships, where the father is coaching the son," Meyer says. "But I haven't seen anything like the Doughertys. The father will chew out the son, but the son won't pout about it. He will take the criticism constructively."

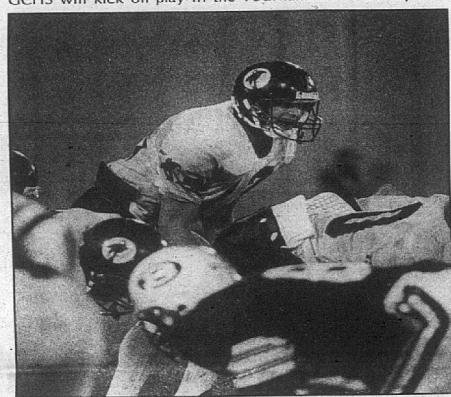

Meyer has a bit of fatherly advice for the younger Dougherty about his post-high school plans.

"I would hope Jim wouldn't have the mindset about the big fish in the big pond," Meyer said. "He should be realistic about his talent. Maybe he should go to a smaller school, where he could play two sports and not suffer academically. It would be interesting to see where he goes."

Gateway, UBDRA pack stands for 'Black Sunday'

The crowds were staggering. The pits and the grandstands were overflowing. And there was nothing but smiles on the faces of the United Black Drag Racers Association and officials of Gateway International Raceway Monday after the UBDRA's eighth annual "Black Sunday" competition.

Nearly 400 racers came from all over the country to compete in the event. More than 4,000 fans came out on a perfect Sunday afternoon to enjoy the races.

There were so many cars, the program could not get through the second round because of darkness.

Those still in competition each received a share of the total purse, and plans are already being drawn up for an even bigger event in 1997.

"We know we're going to have to go to a two-day show, with qualifying and the first round of eliminations on Saturday, and then the final eliminations on Sunday," said UBDRA president Darrell Williams.

"It was gratifying to see the response from the entire community, to see all those racers and fans who came from all over to run with us, and to help Faith House."

Two of the planned three charity events for Faith House is a St. Louis residential center and shelter for children ages 2 days to 5 years old, who have endured drug-abusive home environments — were unable to be run because of the delays.

But Williams said that his organization will increase its donation to Faith House from the one it made a year ago. "When we complete our final accounting, we will announce how big the donation will be, but we know we will give more than we did last year. That's the right thing to do," Williams said.

Gateway International general manager Rod Wolter said the track will make a donation as well.

"It's safe to say that we were totally astounded, and delighted at the number of people who came to race on (See GATEWAY, Page 38) form so close to home," Runtz said. "It looks like the competition will be as fierce as ever this weekend. I think Bigfoot will be up to it."

"We expect a thrilling weekend for all of our fans," said Tri-City promoter Bob Wente. "We'll have some of the biggest and best trucks to be found anywhere right here at Tri-City Speedway."

The world's most famous monster truck, Bigfoot, will be piloted by champion monster truck driver Dan Runtz. The St. Louis-based champion will go head-to-head with old nemesis Snake Bite, as well as Executioner and Sampson for the crown of "King of the Monster Trucks."

Warriors edge West in tourney tuneup

By Rob Raphael

OK, so there's nothing new about a soccer victory over Belleville West for the Warriors.

But Tuesday's was just a little more special, as visiting GCHS kept past the Maroons 1-0 in a Southwestern Conference game.

Granite City earned its first conference win of the season, and finally played a solid game against a school that could be considered a level below the Warriors.

Not that the Maroons lay down for anybody. Granite City hung on for its collective life after forward Curtis Howard scored in just the second minute.

Each team traded chances in the second half, with the Warriors taking the edge in play.

GCHS coach Gene Baker said that his team never tried to fall back into a defensive pattern against the Maroons.

"We don't think like that," he said.

"We try to shut the other team out, and score as many goals as we can."

The first part of that statement was accomplished. GCHS keeper Jeremy Smith made several strong saves, and stopped all of the easy ones, on the way to his fourth shutout of the season.

He had to come up big in the second half, when the Maroons outshot the Warriors 7-4. For the game, West had 12 shots on goal to the Warriors' 10.

Granite City, however, finished with six corner kicks to West's two.

"We had the edge in corners, and I think that showed our dominance," Baker said. "Some of their shots were long distance ones, and we don't look at those as real opportunities."

Howard scored his unassisted goal (See WARRIORS, Page 38)

GCHS golfers set to make swing into postseason

By Rob Raphael
Staff writer

Heading into the final weekend of regular season play, the Granite City Warriors need to sharpen their golf game if they want to make any noise in the regionals.

The postseason is already at hand for the Warriors, who will begin regional play Tuesday after a pair of tournament games.

"It seems like it couldn't possibly be this late in the season already," said GCHS coach Boone Chaney. "But, yet, it is. We have some work to do, or our season's going to be over very quickly."

Once again, when away from the friendly confines of Arlington Golf Course, the Warriors have not done real well.

And such was the case last weekend, when Granite City competed in the Centralia Tournament, a 12-team affair with some of the better schools from southern Illinois present.

In the three-team, two-man, best-ball format, the Warriors' top team was Matt Foley and Jeff Jordan, who combined for an 83.

The team played well on the front nine, making the turn with a one-over 37. But problems plagued them over the back nine, where they ended up shooting a 46.

"We had hoped to do better," Chaney said. "Our goal was for all the teams to shoot in the 70s, but that didn't happen."

Also scoring for Granite City was the team of John Mills and Tim Gosink, who combined for a 42-42-84. Pat Logan and Chris Carpenter combined for a 40-40-80.

Winning the tournament was Salem, which shot a team score of 220. Mt. Vernon was second at 222, and Collinsville was third at 224.

The Warriors ended with a team score of 252, putting them ahead of only Cahokia. Now Granite City has just two more dual matches, sandwiched around the Southwestern Conference tourney today and the Mascoutah Tournament on Saturday.

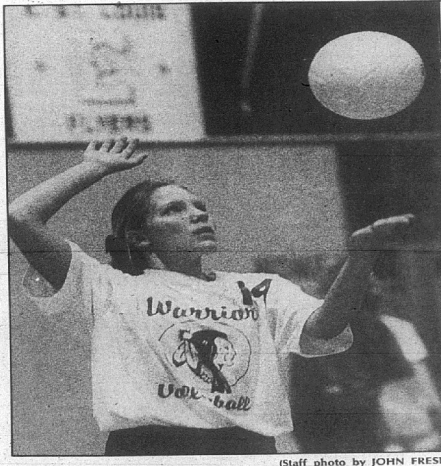

Chaney said he believes his team can make the necessary improvements in time for the regional tournament, but it won't be easy.

"We're still struggling a bit, especially away from Arlington, but I think we have the talent on this team to surprise somebody down the stretch," Chaney said.

"We'll have to buckle down and play our best golf of the year, but we'll have to figure out how to play well away from home. But with some luck we can do it."

form so close to home," Runtz said. "It looks like the competition will be as fierce as ever this weekend. I think Bigfoot will be up to it."

"We expect a thrilling weekend for all of our fans," said Tri-City promoter Bob Wente. "We'll have some of the biggest and best trucks to be found anywhere right here at Tri-City Speedway."

Monster Truck Mania IV, set for Saturday and Sunday, will also feature the showcase introduction of the World Championship Wrestling (WCW) trucks, including Hulkster and Dungeoned of Doom.

"This will be an added bonus for the fans," Wente said. "These newer trucks have had limited runs so far. This will be their official introduction to the world of monster trucks at Tri-City. We are hoping for a good turnout."

"Our monster truck series has always been one of the more successful events each year," Wente said. "It's the biggest, best yet."

Bigfoot fans can receive an extra-special bonus. Fans who visit the Bigfoot 4x4 location in North St. Louis County can receive a $3-off coupon for an adult admission ticket for this weekend's action.

Gates open at 6 p.m. Saturday and 1 p.m. on Sunday. Tri-City is located one-half mile south of I-270 on Illinois 203.

Bearcats looking to rebound

By Scott Marion
Staff writer

It's midseason break time for the McKendree College football team.

The Bearcats (4-4) looked impressive at times in a 21-8 loss at Evansville on Sept. 28. McKendree, which has rescheduled its football program after a 45-year hiatus, had Saturday off and will return to action Oct. 13 with a home game against Westminster College.

"We've had three of four games on the road and we're at home for the whole month of October," said Bearcats coach Carl Poelker. "Against Evansville, we had the ball twice as long as they did and ran almost twice as many plays."

"Their tailback is real good and they have a fast wide receiver, and we let them get loose a couple times. Offensively, we stopped ourselves. We turned the ball over a couple times and had a few penalties, and those are things we have to correct. But we played better than the week before."

McKendree's 327-yard rushing attack included 140 yards on 27 carries by Donald Brooks and 133 yards on 23 carries by Joel Morehouse. But the Bearcats trailed 21-0 before Brooks scored on a 3-yard run with 3:09 left in the game.

"Morehouse had a good game and that takes some of the pressure off Brooks," Poelker said. "As far as the passing game (Jason Karnes completed two of 10 passes for 21 yards), we'll keep working on it. A lot of it is timing."

"The Evansville game was like the Lindenwood game (a 35-14 loss on Sept. 7) in that we got into a rhythm. We had that in spurts against St. Xavier (in a 33-6 loss on Sept. 21). We're going through some growing pains, but that's what we expected."

before many of the Maroons had even warmed up.

"We like to use the flow of the game, and that's no secret," Baker said. "But at the beginning of a half is a good time to press for a goal." The win made the Warriors 1-3 in the SWC and 6-2 overall. GCHS now has the next few days off before beginning the Tournament of Champions next week.

"It takes us into that on somewhat of a positive note," Baker said. "But we're in a tough pool, and we'll have to play well to advance." The Journal will run an in-depth preview later this week on the tournament, which will once again feature almost all of the top teams in the area including CBC, St. Louis University High and Aquinas-Mercy. The Warriors' pool group this year includes the area's top-ranked team, SLUH, along with Aquinas-Mercy and Rosary. The 16-team field includes two other Illinois teams, O'Fallon and Belleville East, and Missouri schools Chaminate, Vianney, DeSmet, Hazelwood Central, McCue North, Duchesne, St. Mary's and Francis Howell North.

Granite City advanced out of pool play last year, but fell 3-2 to CBC in the semifinals. The Cadets went on to defeat Howell North for the tournament title.

"The conference is not a tremendous deal for us, but it was nice to just get a win," Baker said. "What's big for us is this tournament coming up. We hope to play well there."

Black Sunday and help the children of Faith House," Wolter said. "The increase shows the hard work done by the United Black Drag Racers Association to bring this event to the level it is at now."

"We also like to believe that having a facility of this kind will allow events like this, and others, to really take off in future years. We are already talking of ways that we can help this event, and help Faith House, even more in the future."

In other track news, the NHRA was to release the 1997

Winston Drag Racing schedule on Wednesday afternoon. The announcement will be in conjunction with its press conference leading up to the Chief Auto Parts Nationals at the Texas Motorplex outside Dallas.

The dates of the NHRA's inaugural event at Gateway International, as well as the Pennzoil Nationals at Gateway's sister track, Memphis Motorsports Park, were to be announced at that time.

Bercats

Poelker feels the two-week break between games may work in his team's favor.

"It should help us because we're a little banged up," Poelker said. "Brooks has a separated shoulder. It also gives us a chance to work with (fullback Dan) Stolarski in his timing. He was a linebacker for the first three weeks of practice. With the other kids, it will give them a chance to get some reps and get their timing down."

Next Saturday's game is being billed as "The Return Bowl" since Westrauster, like McKendree, has revived its football program this year after a long absence.

"The kids are looking forward to it," Poelker said. "We got the film on Westminster (Wednesday) and we're going to scout them Saturday (against Blackburn)."

"They've won a couple games against Greenville and Trinity Bible College of North Dakota. They should be similar to us in that they're relatively young. I don't know if they went the junior college route and brought in some older players. There should be a lot of interesting sidelines for this game."

Poelker, the dean of college football head coaches in Illinois, has the youngest team in the state.

"All that tells me is I'm getting old," Poelker said, laughing.

ARCHON 20: A sci-fi summit

By Alene Hill
Correspondent

Anyone from the casual to the most ardent science fiction and fantasy enthusiast will find something of interest at ARCHON 20, a regional convention to be held at the Collinsville Gateway Center, Friday through Sunday.

"We really see all levels of enthusiasts — this is a general science fiction and fantasy convention," said Randy Davis, representative for the convention. "We are expecting more than 2,000 this year."

ARCHON 20, celebrating its 20th anniversary this year, is sponsored by the non-profit organization St. Louis Science Fiction Ltd. and has been held at Collinsville's Gateway Center the last three years.

This year's scheduled guests of honor include author Ray Bradbury, best known for several books and short stories, including "Martian Chronicles," "Fahrenheit 451" and "The Illustrated Man."

As in the past, the guest of honor selects a designated charity to receive a donation from a charity fund-raising efforts of ARCHON.

Bradbury requested the local library system receive the donation, and ARCHON chose the Lewis and Clark system, which services several southwestern Illinois libraries.

Bradbury will make a public appearance at the Lewis and Clark Library Headquarters, 425 Goshen road in Edwardsville, from noon until 2 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 5.

Other guests include special effects expert Ray Harryhausen, agent and editor Forrest Ackerman and editor Julius Schwartz.

With some 70 authors and artists booked for the convention, Davis said the crowd tends to draw large numbers of science fiction and fantasy readers and writers.

"This (convention) is oriented to a literary crowd," said Davis. "And we have three times the number of science fiction and fantasy authors as artists."

But, he points out, organizers have not overlooked other areas of interest for science fiction and fantasy buffs.

The three-day program includes seminars, panels, a presentation from a Lucas Film representative, readings, masquerade competitions, an art show and auction, children's programming and gaming.

"We expect to have our biggest year for gaming," said Davis. "We have several regional tournament games, including the Star Wars Card Game, with the winner qualifying for the national game."

An event with an equally big following is the Grand Masquerade, which features regional talents and showcases costumes, some of which, Davis said, have appeared at the World Convention.

And for those who enjoy the perspective of science and technology, the Space Week program offers topics such as actual footage of McDonnell Douglas' DC-X, an experimental space rocket, or a discussion on the logistics of putting a colony on the moon.

Registration begins at 10 a.m. on Friday, Oct. 4. Programming begins at noon.

ARCHON weekend memberships are $35 and $5 for children ages 6-12. Single-day passes and scheduled events are available at the door.

For those who purchase a single-day pass and discover they haven't had enough, Davis says the single-day fees can be converted into a weekend pass.

Some comedies have great lines

By Kevin Carbery
Staff writer

Periodically, I like to return to one of my favorite trivia topics, which is lines from famous movies.

If you have kept up with this column, you know how this goes. I'll throw out a movie line, you have to guess the movie the line is from.

My friends and I have been reciting movie lines since we were in high school. We're particularly fond of comedies, though we'll venture into other movie genres on occasion.

W.C. Fields is absolutely a favorite of mine and some of my friends. The movie "It's a Gift" is loaded with great scenes.

I'm sticking with comedies for this week's trivia quiz. As I'm doing this mostly from memory, please excuse if a word or two is out of place or if I've substituted one word for another.

1. "Marriage is punishment for shoplifting in some countries."

2. "Insanity runs in my family. It practically gallops."

3. "What in the wide world of sports is going on here?"

4. "It's springtime, for Hitler, in Germany."

5. "Don't play hard to get." As this line may have been used in more than one film, I'll give you the hint that the one I'm talking about is from an early '80s movie.

6. "Dirty pool, old man. I like it."

7. "We're fighting for this woman's heart, which is probably more than she ever did."

8. "Filthy swine." This one probably has been used in many movies, but I'm looking for the one that used it in the early '60s.

9. "Some wessel took the cork out of my lunch."

10. "I'm a movie star, not an actor."
